To set the stage for building a ‘community agenda’ for the 10-county Central Texas region by—

- Documenting underlying trends affecting health and human services through existing data, studies and reports
- Identifying and articulating high-priority health and human services issues, root causes and action steps for a broad array of stakeholders across the region
Methodology and Scope

PHASE I

• November 2005 - February 2006
• Synthesized existing data, studies and reports about each of the Central Texas region’s 10 counties

⇒ A Profile of the Capital Area Community report (March 2006) that outlined region-wide and county-specific trends and issues.
Methodology and Scope …

PHASE II

• February - July 2006
• Conducted 37 focus groups and conversations in the region involving 279 people
• Surveyed 2,000+ people online: 302 responses, 234 from Travis County
• Synthesized recent community needs assessments

⇒ Toward Equity for All report (July 2006) that summarizes shared regional vision, pressing issues and root causes, and recommends solutions based on stakeholder input.
Regional context shaped by ...

• Rapid growth in population and jobs — especially high-skill, high-paying jobs — creating a core of economic strength along the Austin-Round Rock corridor with a ‘ring effect’ for the surrounding communities.

• Devolution of social service responsibilities from federal and state governments compounds health and human service challenges for local communities.

• Social service funding cuts have created additional bureaucracy and service barriers.
Big-Picture Observations

- Dramatic, pervasive changes underway in every corner of Central Texas, much of it related to rapid economic and population growth and diversification of its population.
- Though not fully embraced, shared regional vision emerging.
- Austin/Travis County shares consensus on issues, but is less likely to have a regional focus. They are also more ready to act than continue studying/talking.
- There is a pronounced ‘ring effect’ around Austin/Travis County.
‘Ring Effect’

Inner ring (Bastrop, Hays, Burnet, parts of Williamson) 50+% of employed residents commute to Austin/Round Rock for work. Bedroom communities have lower economic base, lower-paying jobs, fewer sources of tax revenue … but increased service needs.

Outer ring (Blanco, Caldwell, Lee, Fayette, Llano, parts of Williamson) experiencing increased cost of living and population growth, while rural infrastructure largely unchanged.
Observations …

• Pressing issues confront the region’s stakeholders, many systemic and highly interrelated. Tackling them appears daunting.
• Systemic issues call for systemic responses.
• Much energy and related activity to build on throughout the Central Texas region and openness to change that can be leveraged.

⇒ The Central Texas community as a whole is primed, ready for action.
Emerging Shared Vision

A community where people are self-sufficient and have equal opportunities for good health and for quality of life.
Pressing Regional Issues, Part 1

Based on our Phase I scan of existing studies and data:

- Lack of affordable, accessible health care for all ages (all counties)
- Increasing wage/economic disparity despite growth
- Lack of affordable housing (8 of 10 counties)
- Lack of affordable, quality pre-school and child care, as well as quality/equity of education and related issues
- Domestic violence and child abuse/neglect
- Heavy traffic/better roads
- Basic needs generally (e.g., utilities, rent, food, shelter)
Pressing Regional Issues, Part 2

Based on our Phase II focus groups and conversations across Central Texas:

- Growth and increasing equity gap
- Distorted resource allocation mechanisms, public and private
- State health and human services cutbacks
- State mental health services cutbacks
- Health care system inadequacies
- Information/eligibility barriers
- Lack of regional transportation system
- Lack of affordable housing
- Isolation of seniors and young people
Issues ...

- Reflect basic needs — think Maslow’s ‘hierarchy’ — clustering around health/mental health needs (5 of 9), plus housing, transportation and jobs.
- Highly interrelated, systemic.
- Bolster other study results, including Equity Commission, African-American Quality-of-Life Study and Envision Central Texas.
- Point towards a shared regional vision.

⇒ Taken together, suggest urgent need for systemic, regional solutions for lasting impacts. Easy to get weighted down by issues; important to stay focused on shared vision.
Selected Recommendations

Based on initial scan, plus focus groups and conversations across the 10-county Central Texas region:

- Regional collaborative effort needed for a common vision and strategy for balanced growth and development, with living-wage jobs and benefits, esp. health insurance, part of the business recruitment bargain.

- Local one-stop shops needed to reduce bureaucratic red tape and provide timely services, particularly in rural and suburban areas.

- Regional task force should examine root causes of and solutions for drug and substance abuse.
Recommendations …

- An information clearinghouse or central location needed to allow service providers and potential clients to access accurate, current services information.
- Partnerships and collaboration among existing transportation providers needed across all counties to provide seamless linkages in routes and schedules.
- Create community centers and public spaces, have organized activities for both seniors and youth, and foster community involvement and civic responsibility among young adults.
Thoughts on Strategies

• Address basic needs — Maslow’s ‘hierarchy’ — and expanding opportunities so people can reach for the emerging regional vision.

• Build on recent/ongoing initiatives, e.g., C.A.R.T.S., 2-1-1, Equity Commission, African-American QoL, Envision Central Texas.

• Foster and expand regional partnerships, meaningfully engaging stakeholders from all outlying counties.

• Secure and maintain broad-based commitment to implementing a ‘community agenda’.
